

Armin Lucevic, MSc

Armin is a PhD candidate registered at University of Amsterdam that will conduct research at Corvinus University and OptiMedis AG.

He received BA diploma in Economics from University of Montenegro, MSc diploma in International Economy and Business from Corvinus University, with specialization in International Economic Analysis, and MA diploma in Healthcare Management from University of Belgrade. During his studies at Corvinus University, Armin spent one semester as exchange student at Tallinn University of Technology in Estonia.

Mr. Lucevic has been working with private and NGO sector, and has experience with startup industry as entrepreneur. On the other hand, he was working as a consultant, helping small and medium enterprises to understand their customers through implementation of innovative technologies. He has more than 10 years of experience with Information Technology and possess various certificates from the Industry (ITIL, CCNA, Satcom Pro, etc.)

His work and engagement has been recognized through scholarships and awards by different governments and companies.

Armin is passionate about volunteering that is focusing on children and vulnerable groups.

During research, he will be working on building performance intelligence in contract arrangements between insurers and health care providers.